

Investment Objective and Strategy

The investment objective of the Fund is to provide long-term capital appreciation by primarily investing in listed equities with a China focus. There can be no assurance that the Fund will achieve its investment objective.

The Fund seeks to achieve its objective primarily through exposure to companies established in China or those which, whilst established outside China, derive a significant proportion of their revenue or profits from business related to China. The Fund makes investments into companies that, in the Manager's opinion, have been undervalued by the market. There is no restriction on market capitalizations or industries in relation to the equity securities in which the Fund may invest.

Under normal circumstances, the asset allocation strategy is that at least 70% of the Fund's Net Asset Value will be invested in stocks of companies established in China or those which, whilst established outside China, derive a significant proportion of their revenue or profits from business related to China (including but not limited to investment in depositary receipts such as American Depositary Receipts), and, subject to an overall upper limit on onshore PRC exposure of 20% of the Fund's Net Asset Value, up to 20% of the Fund's Net Asset Value will be invested directly or indirectly in stocks listed in Shanghai (including stocks listed on the Sci-Tech Innovation Board (the "STAR Board")) and/or Shenzhen (including stocks in the ChiNext market and/or stocks listed on the Small and Medium Enterprise Board (the "SME Board")).

Fund Manager's Comment

Following the early Chinese New Year holidays, the Hong Kong market resumed strongly in February, driven by Deepseek's technological breakthroughs. The Hang Seng Index advanced 13.4% during the month. Investors in the Chinese market have now turned slightly optimistic about China's economic outlook, supported by the political pivot that began in September last year. We have observed the China 10-year yield rebound from 1.6% to 1.8%, while HKEX Southbound Stock Connect fund flows have increased significantly, now accounting for nearly half of the daily traded value in Hong Kong.

The launch of BYD's ADAS strategy and "God's Eye" system further sparked optimism about Chinese enterprises' technological advancements, with L2+ functions now available on EVs priced below RMB 100,000. A business symposium in mid-February marked a symbolic moment, with Jack Ma returning to the spotlight alongside high-level Chinese government officials, suggesting a policy shift to support private enterprises in AI development in future. We expect this direction to remain stable in the medium term. Alibaba's year-end earnings call, which emphasized the RMB 380 billion AI spending plan over three years, further confirmed that AI development will be a key focus to strengthen the Chinese economy moving forward.

In contrast, uncertain tariff policies and weakening economic data from the US have prompted investors to reduce exposure and rotate toward China, despite additional tariffs being imposed on China as well. We see the market placing greater emphasis on AI development opportunities in China, as the narrative continues to be supported by relatively attractive valuations. We believe the tech sector will remain the primary focus for the rest of the year, though sector rotation will persist based on fundamental signals. Companies with strong brand cycles, resilience, and visibility are likely to continue attracting investors betting on China's economic recovery. The earnings season in March will provide a timely chance to reassess existing holdings and identify bargain opportunities, while the market is back to reality. Overall, we remain positive about the Hong Kong market outlook but cautious about execution, as the market appears to be in a consolidation phase.
